Two Weeks Ago. It was two weeks ago this morning that Channon's body was found in an outhouse at the Hess school hanging by a wire noose from a rafter. He had erved time in the penitentiary for killing his first wife and had been pa roled after seven years because of his excellent behavior in prison. He had coming to Clinton that he would never go back to prison should he ever get into trouble again.

Then bit by bit the rest of the story unfolded itself. It became known that Channon had served time that he had been drinking Saturday night, that he and his bride of three weeks had quarreled, that they had left the house together and later that his prison sentence had been for man slaughter- for the killing of his firs wife. It was learned that he had a terrible temper, highly inflammable when intoxicated.

But if he had killed his second wife how had he disposed of her body? It was a peculiar mystery, a reversal of the usual puzzle. It was the murdered and not the murderer that was being sought. The "jungles" were searched, so was the countryside where Channon's body had been found. Two people in different localities reported that they had heard a woman scream Saturday night. Both came from the direction of an alley and both were on the east side of Second street.

All sorts of theories were formed. Some thought the body had been thrown into a box car and been carried away. Others believed the river contained her body, while a rumor made it seem for a time that she had been killed and buried in a field near the Hess school.

Present Day Honeymoon. Keen observers have noted that newly married couples of moderate means are begining to take a more sensible view of the honeymoon, and even wealthy people are showing a tendency to limit the wedding tour to three or four days in Paris.

The old-fashioned idea that a young married couple must cut themselves off from their friends and spend more money than they can afford at expensive hotels is gradually giving way to the more commonsense practice of disappearing for three or four days. **

Some unconventional couples have recently gone so far as to make of their honeymoon nothing more than a week end at a popular watering place, asking their friends to come down for bridge over Sunday. One bride, after two days' absence | from & London, brought her husband back to her parents' house and gave a series of theatre parties, an innovation which greatly pleased her friends.

Would Accompany Her. There is in Brooklyn a young, recently married couple who have been having the usual half-pathetic and wholly amusing experiences incident to somewhat limited means and total inexperience. Last Saturday there was a hitch in the delivery of the marketing, and Sunday found them with a practically empty larder. When dinner time came the young wife burst

"Oh, this is horrible!" she wept. "Not a thing in this house for a dog to eat! I am going home to mamma!" "If you don't mind, dear," the husband exclaimed, as he visibly brightened and reached for his hat, "I'll go with you!"

MARKING THE OLD BLOCK HOUSE.

The proposal of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Dixon to perpetuate the memory and history of the old block house that stood near the north bank of Rock River, near where the north end of the Galena avenue bridge now is, should strike a responsive chord in the sentiment of this community and it is to be hoped that the suggestion will be carried out. The old fort, which was built as a protection against hostile Indians and in the early days was the headquarters for military operations throughout this section of the frontier, could very easily be reproduced, and occupying the prominent position that it would, on the Lincoln Highway, the Douglas Trail and the Black Hawk Trail, it would form one of the most interesting spots that most tourists would find in a long journey.

The local people who are interested in having the spot marked in some way have located the exact site of the historic old building. If anything is done about the matter it would seem that it should be done right and it is believed by the Telegraph that enough ground should be purchased surrounding the site to form a small park. If the house on the corner just west of the north approach to the bridge, could be purchased, as well as the let to the north of it, a most attractive spot could be created and the beauty of the vicinity would be nowise lessened. It has been proposed that a monument or marker of some description be erected on the site of the old fort, but it i now suggested that it would be much more interesting if an exact reproduction of the block house could be built there.

There is no doubt but that if the citizens of Dixon will take an interest in the proposition, it will be possible to get an appropriation from the state and also aid from the county in carrying out the project, and as the expen diture would not be much, there is no reason why the plan should not be carried out.

This old fort, where Lincoln was twice mustered into the United State army service, where "Jeff" Davis served as Lieutenant and where Col. Zach ary Taylor served, with many other notables, including the hero of Fort Sumpter, certainly, deserves a permanent place in the history of the state and the location of the old site, which happens to be on the Lincoln High way, is so ideal that the people of Dixon cannot afford to let pass this chance to improve it.

SIMPLIFIED SPELLING.

At the last meeting of the Illinois Daily Newspaper Association, of which the Telegraph is a member, held at the Hotel LaSalle in Chicago, the subject of simplified spelling received considerable attention, resulting in the adoption of a resolution favoring the simplified way of spelling man words. The following extract from the minutes of the meeting explains:

By a unanimous vote the association endorsed the movement for simplified spelling advocated by the National Education association, and ably pre sented to the meeting by Dr. Gideon. The following list is earnestly recom- and spent the day with friends. mended to editors as being worthy of immediate adoption:

National Education association list of simplified spelling:

tho	for	though
altho	,	although thru		through thruout	••	throughout
thoro	••	thorough
thoroly	,,	thoroughly
thorofare	•	thoroughfare
program	,	programme
catalog	••	catalogue
decalog		decalogue
pedagog	. "	pedagogue
prolog		prologue

These are the twelve words, the simpler and shorter spelling of which, economizing thirty-one letters, were adopted by the National Educational association in 1898, have been used since then in all its official publication. and are now given vocabulary space in the current dictionaries of the English language. These spellings are followed by a large and increasing number of daily newspapers and by many weekly and monthly periodicals througut the United States. Which is the spelling that appeals to you on the grounds of reason, economy, order and authority?

MARK THE OLD BLOCK HOUSE.

There is no more historic spot on the Lincoln Highway than the site of the old block house near the north end of the Galena avenue bridge in Dixon. It should be marked in a suitable manner, with a little park and a monument. It was the military headquarters of this section of the frontier when Lincoln was in the service here. This spot will also be passed by the Douglas Trail. It would make a point of no little interest and would make Dixon more attractive to the casual tourist who passes through.

HAVE SOME SNAILS? NO?

They say that snails are delicious and could be grown in Illinois to take the place of oysters, which they resemble in flavor when properly prepared It is suggested that it would be a valuable addition to the American table i the use of snails as food could be introduced into this country. Two hundred million snails are used in Paris yearly. However, the suggestion does not awaken great gastronomic enthusiasm on our part, at least.

There are many parts of the city where the new pavements have worn so smooth that they are dangerous for horses. One valuable animal was very severely injured on Central place this morning. The last bricks put in were very wide and flat and the cracks between, which afford the horse his only foothold, were far apart and very small. Since the asphalt has worn off the surface of the bricks, the conditions are much worse.

ILLINOIS THEATRE, CHICAGO.

"Tonight's the Night," the Gaiety theatre, London, musical comedy pro duction, will come to the Illinois thea tre, Chicago, for an engagement of fou rweeks, beginning Sunday evening, Oct. 31, after successful runs in New York and Boston. The London Gaiety theatre is famous from one end of the civilized world to the other as the home and fountainhead of musical comedy. It was there that musical comedy was born, that this partic ular and distinctive form of light en tertainment had its being. Before their presentation in this country they have been generally subjected to a process of Americanization so-called by some hack musical comedy librettist, and when shown they have al ways been offered by casts in which American players have strongly predominated. The English atmosphere of daintiness and delicate charm, the distinctive feature of all the Gaiety pieces, has usually been utterly lack ing. Now the American theatregoers in "Tonight's the Night" have the opportunity of seeing the Simon-pure va riety of English production.

The piece was intended for presen tation at the Gaiety in London early last fallbut the war necessitated i having its premiere at the Shubert theatre, New York, instead and it re based upon the well known "Pink Domino" and contains probably a lar-States Attorney Harry Edwards ger percentage of farcical situations on legal than the average musical comedy, be it either English or American.

The book is by Fred Thompson and the music by Paul A. Rubens. For the first time in 18 years an all-English east of principals and an all-English chorus, the pride of London's Gaiety theatre, will be seen in "Tonight's the Night."

Mail orders are now being received for the reservation of seats and when eccompanied by check, postal or ex press money orders, will be filed in he order of receipt.

Queer Side of Japan.

In Japan the lower orders of life not only make war and supply meat, but evince sundry other peculiarities that render the invaluable concomi-tants of civilization, writes J. Ingram Bryan, in Harper's Weekly. A few days ago a number of people were seen gazing intently toward the upper limbs of a large pine tree. Stopping to learn the secret of this unusual interest a man was observed descending the tree, while a crow was furiously cawing and beating about his head. Then it was seen that the trespasser had possessed himself of one of her brood, an unprepossessing little chick that no one could be imagined to fancy for a pet. Asked what he intended doing with the crow, he replied that it made excellent medicine for the blood. "Chino-michi-no-kusuri," to use his exact words. To insure the efficacy of the medicine, he explained, the bird must be taken before it leaves the nest, if possible, or, if it has left the nest, before it gets to where it can drink water, for, he asserted, if it has of itself taken water it loses all virtue as a blood cure. The process of preparing the remedy is, first, to kill the crow and, without cleaning it, to in-case the body in an airtight covering of cement or clay. The mold is then baked for two or three days in a hot fire. When the clay crust is removed, naturally the crow will be found to be black, a lump of pure charcoal. This is pulverized and converted into pills of the "pink" order, which are very popular here as a blood regulator. He reminded his interlocutors that the medicine was very rare because of the difficulty of finding a crow that had not taken water. The man was perfectly sincere and appeared extremely proud of his success in having secured the bird. He was reluctant to leave the tree lest there should be another one on the ground some-

Reputation and Luck.

Nobody gifted with a sense of humor can fail to be diverted by the Pucklike manner in which luck makes and unmakes reputations for business ability. A score of years ago a gentleman named Jennings was an extensive owner of downtown real estate in Chicago. He was the first, I believe, to develop on a large scale the modern system of the ninety-nine-year lease-whereby the owner insures himself and his heirs for a century an absolutely fixed rental, free and clear of all charges. After Mr.

Jennings had leased a lot of his lands for ninety-nine years a depression came on. Other people's incomes were curtailed: but his was stable.

"What foresight!" said the town.

"What sagacity! What superb business judgment." Mr. Jennings views on the business situation and outlook were eagerly sought. The depression passed; realty prices advanced immensely; the Jennings lots could have been leased at twice the rental named in the old indentures. The town shook its head sympathetically over poor Mr. Jennings's deplorable their reach were several bases of hay.

By some clever maneuvering the white horse, which was nearest the some of the hay. His brown mate, not getting any of the hay, with almost human actions, made the white horse understand that he wished to the white horse took larger mouth-

New Yorw, Oct. 28.-In the search of the federal authorities for the fountain head of the cash and the directing impulse believed to be behind the movement in this country to harass the allies' purchases of ammunition and other war supplies, Lieutenant Robert Fay, Max Brietung, Walter E. Scholz and others, accused of conspiring to destroy munition carrying ships, were regarded as mere pawns in a vast campaign. The large sums lof money, aggregating $30,000, they have spent strongly indicates this.

The stories of Lieutenant Fay and Scholz in which they confess to making mines for the disabling of the allies' ships, sailing from this port, were believed only to a limited extent. The federal authorities believe Fay and Scholz are concealing many important facts about their activities. They also believe that the glibness and the apparent frankness of the two men are artful ruses for the purpose of detracting the secret service and the police from many other activies in which the prisoners have been engaged

ILLINOIS TOWN HAS DEEP DEATH MYSTERY

Slain Man's Body Found Recalls Evidence of Murder.

Marion, Ill., Oct. 27 .- The skeleton of a man was found by John Dickerson and his son in a creek bed a mile and a half north of Marion. Death had taken place several months ago. A laundry mark, "D. V. No. 501," was found on the neckband of a shirt. There was a rope about the waist, evidently having been used for dragging the body.

The discovery of the skeleton recalls the finding of blood within a few feet of the entrance of Rose Hill cemetery in this city four months ago. At the place where the blood was found there was evidence of a struggle. The spot where the bones were found is less than a mile from the cemetery.

Residents of that region told of having heard a number of shots from that direction on the night before the blood was found.

Marks on the body indicated that the man had been shot.

Lord Lansdowne Tells Peers Teutons and Bulgars Are Crushing Little Kingdom-French Claim Gain-Teutonic Allies Now Hold All Points

London, Oct. 28.-Developments came thick and fast in the Balkan situation, leaving critics here gloomy with the belief that the danger of annihilation of the main Serbian army is increasing hourly, despite the utmost efforts of the allies to reach vital positions with reinforcements sufficient to save the nation from complete collapse. Standing out in the news of the day were the following events:

Lansdowne Highly Skeptical.

Lord Lansdowne declared before the house of lords that it was highly improbable the Serbians could withstand for any length of time the attacks of the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians.

It was officially announced that absolutely no word had been received from Nish, the capital of Serbia, for Senator Ashurst Asks Washingthree days, forcing the conclusion that the city has been isolated by the Bulgars and is doomed to speedy capture.
